More from Machen

All quotes from Christianity and Liberalism:

18 - Few desires on the part of religious teachers have been more harmful than the desire to “avoid giving offence [sic].

20 - It is perfectly conceivable that the originators of the Christian movement had no right to legislate for subsequent generations; but at any rate they did have an inalienable right to legislate for all generations that should choose to bear the name of “Christian.”

28 - “Christ died”—that is history; “Christ died for our sins”—that is doctrine. Without these two elements, joined in an absolutely indissoluble union, there is no Christianity.

39 - The persons to whom the Golden Rule is addressed are persons in whom a great change has been wrought—a change which fits them for entrance into the Kingdom of God. Such persons will have pure desires; they, and they only, can safely do unto others as they would have others do unto them, for the things that they would have others do unto them are high and pure.

58 - Human affection, apparently so simple, is really just bristling with dogma.
